БЛОК 2 «ЧТЕНИЕ И ЛОГИЧЕСКОЕ МЫШЛЕНИЕ»

43-47. Прочитайте текст «PEDIATRICIANS OFFICIALLY WANT HIGH SCHOOLS TO START LATER!» и выберите наиболее подходящий ответ на вопрос.

Studies have shown that it helps, top education officials have recommended it, and now doctors are officially saying the same.

On Monday, the American Academy of Pediatrics released a policy statement recommending that middle and high schools delay the start of class until after 8:30 a.m. About 40 percent of high schools in the country start earlier than 8 a.m., a phenomenon that has negative effects on teens' safety, well-being and education, according to Dr. Judith Owens, the director of sleep medicine at Children's National Medical Center in Washington D.C.

Adolescents are currently severely sleep-deprived, notes the report, with 87 percent of high school students getting less than the recommended amount of 8.5 to 9.5 hours per night. The reasons for this are varied. For biological reasons, it can be difficult for teens to fall asleep before 11 p.m. Beyond that, lifestyle factors such as homework and extracurricular activities also tend to keep adolescents awake.

"We really feel that this is such a compelling health problem that it really is in the best interest of students for schools to take this step," said Owens, the report's lead author. "We're hoping the more we educate school districts and various stakeholders, the more schools will actually implement this on a practical basis."

Research shows that sleep deprivation negatively affects students' grades. A 2012 study found that middle school students who started class an hour later than usual saw their standardized test scores increase over 2 percentile points in math on average.

"The score changes are comparable to other differences we might see: The effects of starting school one hour later are similar to the increasing grades we see when kids' parents have Master's or PhD's," researcher Finley Edwards told HuffPost at the time.

Sleep-deprived teens also have _____ self-reported rates of depression, higher rates of obesity and lower rates of school attendance.

"When you delay school start times, all these factors improve: less self-reported depression, fewer driving accidents, better grades, better test scores, better attendance," Owens said.

The nation's top education official agrees with Owens' assessment. In 2013, Education Secretary Arne Duncan said that while schools are free to set their own start times, it's worth considering a delay.

"There's lots of research and common sense that lots of teens struggle to get up ... to get on the bus," Duncan said last year in a broadcast interview.

But, as an Associated Press article pointed out at the time, changing school start times isn't easy and can have unintended consequences.

"If you're starting the high school kids later, you're starting elementary kids earlier. No one wants those kids out on the streets when it's dark," Patte Barth, director for the Center for Public Education at the National School Boards Association told the outlet. "If they're contemplating this switch, they need to look at the costs."

43. What is the genre of the text?

- 1) having difficulty to get up
 - 2) not having enough sleep
 - 3) waking up several times
 - 4) having too much sleep
46. Put the most suitable word into the blank (line 23):
- 1) higher
 - 2) similar
 - 3) lower
 - 4) fewer
47. Pupils who are seriously sleep-deprived (in comparison to those who are not):
- 1) are overweight
 - 2) look better
 - 3) attend classes more often
 - 4) often have parents with PHD’s

Wikipedia as an Educational Tool

A) Many university professors have tended to forbid students from using the source because of it. But not all of them!

B) The majority said it was daunting to work online, where anyone could watch. Some even found the assignment more exciting and meaningful than a term paper, which often gets filed away once the semester ends. Three entries even received featured article status. Only a few students had their work instantly deleted by other users because it probably wasn't good enough.

C) In order to improve the quality of the content, Wikipedia has even begun to publish featured articles. They provide thorough, well-written coverage of their content, supported by many peer-reviewed publications. Well, even this move appeared to be not enough (of all the entries at Wikipedia, only about 2,000 have been designated for this top rank) and the source is still not very trustworthy.

D) Wikipedia is an online encyclopedia that is being written by its users. Anyone with an Internet connection can add new entries or edit existing ones, and there are currently more than ten million articles in over 253 languages. But because anyone can make changes to the content, inaccuracies and poorly supported information often appears. It's an issue of great concern to the encyclopedia.

E) At the University of British Columbia Jon Beasley-Murray made an interesting experiment - he permitted his students to write entries for the Wikipedia instead of the usual term paper assignment.

F) Overall, though, most agreed that it was a great learning experience.

“I had slept for many hours. When I awoke it was just daylight. I tried to get up from the ground, but I could not move! My arms and feet were held down to the ground with strings. I heard some noise around me, but I could see nothing. In a little time I felt something alive moving on my foot, then it came over my body and up to my face. Turning my eyes down as much as I could, I saw a man. He was less than 15 centimeters high.”

“At last the sleepy atmosphere of the village was stirred and vigorously: Muff Potter was being tried for the alleged murder of Dr. Robinson. It became the absorbing topic of the village talk immediately. Tom knew that he was not suspected of knowing anything about the murder, but every reference to it sent a shudder to his heart. His dreams at night were full of horrors. In the daytime he was drawn to the courtroom by an almost irresistible impulse to go in, but he forced himself to stay out. Tom kept his ears open, but invariably heard distressing news: Indian Joe’s evidence was unshaken and there was not the slightest doubt that Muff Potter would be convicted.”

“In the interim the Invisible Man must have learnt something of the rapid use Kemp had made of his confidence. He must have found houses locked and secured, he may have loitered about railway stations, have prowled about inns, and no doubt he read the proclamations and realized something of the nature of the complaint against him. And as the evening advanced the fields became dotted here and there with groups of three or four men and noisy with the yelping of dogs. These men-hunters had particular instructions as to the way they should support one another.”

“All the world’s a stage. And all the men and women merely players; They have their exits and their entrances; one man in his time plays many parts, His acts being seven ages. As, first the infant, Mewling and puking in the nurse’s arms. And then the whining schoolboy, with his satchel. And shining morning face, creeping like snail. Unwillingly to school. ...”
